By TYRRELL KRAM
Washington, March 26 (US)—Administration leaders today had drafted a program of legislative action, outlawing sit-down strikers to be laid before President Roosevelt tomorrow.

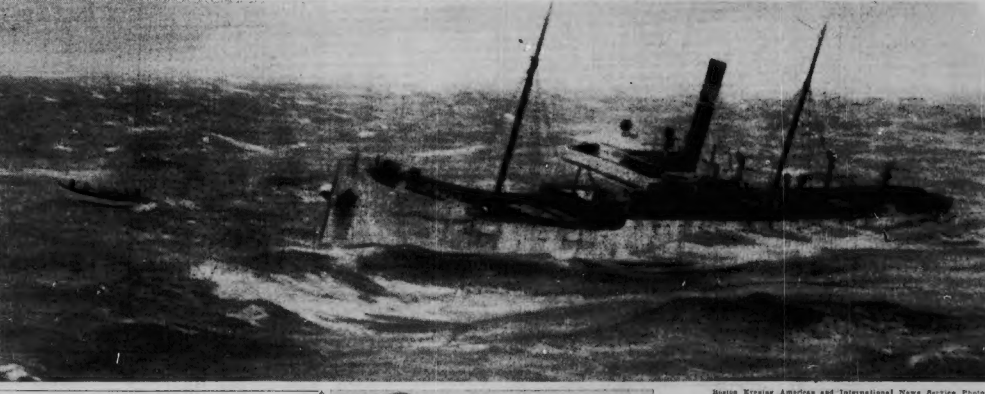

Despite the trade in the Chrysler strike and evacuation of 600 workers, Congressional spokesmen were firm in their insistence that concrete measures must be adopted to prevent recurrence of sit-down strikes.
At the same time, it was learned that President Roosevelt will make a formal statement today condemning the sit-down strike and warning that it is against the law.
The Supreme Court, meanwhile, moved back into the labor picture. "Opinion Day" is expected to be announced today, with the court's decision on the legality of the National Labor Relations Act expected to be handed down.
Flurries of activity on sit-down strikes broke out on both floors of Congress during the day. Congressional leaders invited to

Woman Near Death In 4-Story Fall At Army Base

Gabrielle Harney, 36, of Willow street, Matapan, was seriously injured today when she plunged down a cable shaft from the fourth floor to the basement at the army base, South Boston.
She was employed as a first aid nurse at the Works Progress Administration sewing project quarters on the fourth floor.
According to police, she had been accustomed to keep her bed and coat near a platform inside the shaft. They believe she apparently lost her footing as she reached for her clothes and thus turned to pass through the door of the shaft.
She was taken in an army ambulance to Currier Hospital, where she was found suffering from severe head and internal injuries. Her name was placed on the danger list and she was given the last rites of the church.
In her plunge she struck several pipes extending along the shaft near the cables.

CHRYSLER-LEWIS RENEW PEACE PARLEY

MURPHY SEES WAY TO END STRIKE

By JAMES J. KILGALLAN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Lansing, Mich., March 26.—Walter P. Chrysler and John L. Lewis resumed negotiations in Governor Francis Murphy's office today, with every indication that this was the "make or break" day in the conference designed to end the Chrysler automobile strike.

As he entered the governor's office, Lewis said:

"The odds are, as I see it now, that we will make progress today."

Chrysler and nearly a dozen of his executives, including K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation, trudged across the parkway from the Old Hotel a block away to the capitol, looking much like a jury at a murder trial.

They looked solemn. Not a word had any of them to say as they filed in.

There was just one big issue before the conference:

"Shall the United Automobile Workers Union be recognized as the sole bargaining agency for the 67,000 Chrysler employees?"

All other difficulties had been ironed out, the principal one of which was getting the auto sit-down strikers out of the Chrysler plant, Chrysler insisted on this before he would get down to the real business of the conference with Lewis.

The general feeling was that today's conference would be decisive. The Governor had announced that if no agreement were reached today he would adjourn the parley until Tuesday. But there was strong indication that neither side wanted to prolong the discussions and that both were determined to settle the issue today.

The governor apparently believes he can bring about a compromise on the sole bargaining issue acceptable to both Chrysler and Lewis.

POSSIBLE SETTLEMENT

Under it, according to reports, the union would not be given a contract for exclusive bargaining, but would represent any factory division in which it has a majority of workers.

There is as the UAW claims that 95 per cent of Chrysler employees have signed membership cards, the suggested solution might amount to sole bargaining powers. Yet, at the same time, Chrysler would not have yielded in his refusal to grant an exclusive contract.

It is this issue that is holding up settlement of the Chrysler strike which has been in progress since March 8.

"I am optimistic that we can bring both sides together and end this strike," said Governor Murphy. "The conference are being carried on in the spirit of good Friday—the spirit of sacrifice."

"When the Chrysler strike is settled," continued the governor, "the most serious of the labor difficulties will be out of the way. The other disputes should be settled promptly in their turn."

"We are headed straight for in-distrial peace and good will in Michigan.

SIT STRIKES ILLEGAL

"The future of labor difficulties in Michigan and in the nation look extremely bright to me."

The governor dismissed the human relationships which have arisen during the past months of strike turmoil and pointed out the inadequacy of present laws to protect equity.

"We will not get a true picture of this thing until a few months have elapsed," he said. "Problems involving the human equation cannot be solved by an exact form of justice. I don't know anyone profound enough, unless it were the author of life itself, who could settle these problems by exact legal formulas."

"The sit-down strike has been effective and has been justified by the labor leaders on that ground, and on moral ground. But, of course, it is not legal. The best hope among the labor group have always realized this.

"The rule of thumb isn't much help in such a situation."

Governor Murphy said that throughout the labor negotiations in the case of General Motors as well as Chrysler he has striven for two things: 1, obedience to authority; and 2, adjustment of the issue amicably and in the spirit of reason around the conference table.

Just what the Federal government can do toward solving the problem at this time is a difficult question, the President indicated.

LENTEN Services SOLEMN

GOOD FRIDAY OBSERVED

Most solemn services of the year, in Greater Boston's Catholic and Protestant churches, alike, were scheduled today in commemoration of the tragic events on the Hill of Calvary, 19 centuries ago.

Observance of Good Friday here, as elsewhere throughout the Christian world, was to be featured by three hour devotions, beginning at noon.

Brief affairs striped of all decorations and draped in mourning, throngs of worshippers were to hear again the distressing story of the Passion, with interpretations of the "seven last words" of Christ.

Today's services, symbolic of humanity's sorrowful remembrance of the sacrifice on the cross, were presided by Holy Trinity churches, conducted in churches banked with flowers and bright with candles.

Children's Service

The chanting of the Tenebrae, one of the most beautiful rituals of the church, took place Wednesday night and last night and will be repeated finally tonight.

St. John Ecumenical Seminary choir, directed by Reverend William J. German, will sing at Holy Cross Cathedral.

This morning's masses, as dictated by tradition, were to omit communion services.

Scheduled for the afternoon were special Good Friday services for children. At tonight's closing Lenten devotions stations of the cross were to be held, and appropriate sermons preached.

Tomorrow morning, the ending of the Lenten season will be observed by lighting of the new fire, the Paschal candle, and blessing of Easter water at solemn high masses in all Catholic churches.

The penitential 40 days of Lent conclude at noon, tomorrow, to be followed by the joyous festival of the resurrection on Easter Sunday.

Most elaborate of today's Good Friday services in Protestant churches of the city were scheduled at St. Paul's Cathedral, King's Chapel and Trinity Church, Copley square.

Bishop to Preach

Right Reverend Henry Knox Sherrill, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, was to deliver the sermon at St. Paul's Cathedral on Good Friday, early today, a young people's group met at First Methodist Church for a Good Friday breakfast and an inspirational talk by Rev. Otis R. Fischer.

A large attendance was expected at noon to 2 p. m. services at the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help (Madison Church), Roxbury.

Eight priests were to preach, interpreting the "seven last words."

Also to be largely attended were services at St. Leonard's, St. Mary's and St. Stephen's Churches in the North End; St. James Church, Harrison avenue, and the Church of the Immaculate Conception in the South End.

President Chats With Warm Springs Patients

President Roosevelt's activities extend far beyond his fond 'fireside' chats. Here he is shown in conversation with two of the patients of the Warm Springs Foundation in Warm Springs, Ga., during the buffet dinner tendered him by the inmates. The President is due to leave the foundation soon for Washington.

Natives Sing, Cheer On Roosevelt Visit

Warm Springs, Ga., March 25 (AP)—Taking advantage of summer weather, the President went sightseeing in Georgia.

At the wheel of his open touring car, the President first inclined to his nearby farm to discuss the condition of his herd of white-faced, blooded Hereford cattle with his superintendent, Otis Moore.

Over duty and hazardous hill trails to the Pine Mountain Valley Re-creation Project.

The entire population of 187 families were gathered in front of the community house to greet him with song and cheer. The President told the crowd:

"I'm tremendously impressed with the improvements you have made here since my last visit a year ago. The government will make this project succeed. You people who can make it succeed will make it succeed from the oldest to the youngest baby."

The President then visited the Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Chippley, Ga., where opportunity was granted to see the work of the editor of the camp paper.

Later the President said his drilling and regular military training would not be included in the curriculum of the C. C. C. camp because the boys have too many other occupations.

Wellesley Wife Charges Cruelty, Wins Divorce

Her husband pushed her through a window, cutting her arm, and beat her on many other occasions, Mrs. Irene J. Curry of Wellesley testified today to win an uncontested divorce in Dedham court.

She said that on one occasion when she attempted to telephone, her husband, Philip Curry, snatched the telephone from her hands, threw her against the door, and beat her head on the door.

MARRIED IN 1927

The couple were married March 31, 1927, at Newton. Their marital troubles began in the summer of 1936, she said.

Also granted a divorce was Mrs. Mary J. Drish, Boston, from Salvatore Drish of Quincy, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Mrs. Drish said that she was accustomed to taking their baby out for an airing, and upon her return, her husband would accuse her of going other places.

EDITOR WIRES OF OWN KILLING

Alturas, Cal., March 26 (AP)—Killed in what Sheriff John Sharp said today was the climax of a newspaper feud, Claude L. McCracken, 46-year-old editor, reported the story of his own shooting as his last act.

Harry French, 39-year-old state employee and son of Alturas' rival newspaper publisher, surrendered after McCracken was shot down in his home last night as he ate dinner with two young women.

French was held on an open charge today.

With five bullets in his body, McCracken was carried to a hospital where his wife was the nurse assigned to care for him. She assisted surgeons in the operating room in a vain effort to save her husband's life.

There McCracken dictated a telegram to the Associated Press Bureau in San Francisco. It read: "Tonight, about 8:30, Harry French shot Claude L. McCracken, editor of the Modoc Mail, with an automatic pistol. Condition of McCracken serious. (Signed) 'MCCRACKEN.'"

Two hours later he died.

McCracken was the Associated Press correspondent here and publisher of the micrographed Modoc Daily Mail.

French is the son of Bard French, publisher of the long-established Alturas Weekly Plain Dealer.

"The papers have been battling back and forth on every issue that has come up," Sheriff Sharp said. "I think the shooting was due to hard feelings aroused by this rivalry."

District Attorney K. A. Wylie said he would file final degree murder charges against French. He described the controversies between the newspapers as trivial.

Soon after they were married, while living with his parents, she said she was forced from the house. When she returned with her sister to get her baby, her husband's parents threw milk bottles at them, she said.

They were married in Quincy October 24, 1926. She was given custody of the child.

SCHOOL BLAST AMEE THREAT WRITER FOUND

Austin, Tex., March 25 (UPI)—A preliminary report of the military court of inquiry which investigated the New London school blast after today recommended creation of a government agency to supervise public building construction, and compulsory use of a major device in domestic gas.

The report reduced to a finding of fact testimony that trustees of the school had authorized disconnection of the school's gas system from the regular gas distributor, and the connection to "highly dangerous" residue gas from a gasoline plant.

This gas, the findings of fact stated, led to irregular pressure in the gas line which was constructed for a regular pressure of four inches. There resulted an "explosive mixture" accumulation of gas.

McHugh gave his decision after "Spotty" jumped into Clifford's lap and tried to lick his face in court last night.

"Certainly no man, judge or not, could have the heart to part such devoted pals," he said.

Sockman reported that part of the bodies were in bags and some had the feet wired together.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by Damon Runyon. All Rights Reserved.)

The Rev. John Sutherland Bonnell, dedicating a new set of chimneys at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York last Sunday, said New York gauges as much sorrow to Christ as ancient Jerusalem.

He took as his text:

"He beheld the city and wept over it."

The Rev. Dr. Bonnell apparently cherishes the old, old conception of New York as a hub of sin. It is an idea that the folks at the forks of the creek have always liked.

If you ask us, the picture is a little more, or dated. There is a sin enough, and to spare, in New York, all right. However, as a great object lesson, the city no longer comes up to specifications.

We suppose we are going to get in bad with the ministers for casting aspersions upon one of their favorite topics. We will probably be accused by loyal New Yorkers of knocking their city with the out-of-town trade.

But the truth is that, proportionately to population, New York is not half as sinful as scores of other much smaller cities in these United States, and we think it should stop claiming a superiority it does not possess.

Living on 'Rep'

For many years New York has been living on its old reputation for sinfulness. It is still in the Bowery and the Broadway of a couple of generations back.

The ministers and other public speakers, and even editorial writers, have done much to preserve that old reputation for the Big Town. Whenever they are at a loss for something to talk about, the sinfulness of New York is a mighty handy topic.

Moreover, it has always been quite safe. Down through the years the speakers and the writers knew they could picture New York as a sort of combination Sodom and Gomorrah without fear of anybody's standing up in meeting and challenging their assertions.

Indeed, it is with some reluctance that we challenge them ourselves. We dislike doing anything calculated to crush the native pride of the New Yorker who goes away on a visit to relatives in the provinces at being looked upon in wonder and in awe because he comes from that great citadel of sin.

But we are a stickler for fact, and the fact in this case is that New York does not stand as high as it used to among the cities of the United States. And if, in bringing this matter to public attention, we are hurting the tourist business of the Big City, we can only say we are sorry.

Statistical Sin

In speaking of sin, we are referring, of course, to the general manifestations thereof. Sin may be a state of mind, or heart, or omission, or commission. The kind of sin we are talking about is the kind that shows in the form chart. Maybe we mean wickedness.

The population of the greater city of New York is said to now be around 7,000,000. The last church census was in 1926, when the population of the big town was undoubtedly less, and this census disclosed a church membership of 4,079,501.

The entire Empire State of New York had but 2,719,645 more church members than New York City. And, although that the general population of the city has increased greatly since 1926, the church membership must have increased, too. Obviously, a city that patronizes churches to this extent is little entitled to the pretensions to sin that New York has been making.

On the basis of crime as a sin, New York, proportionately to population, rates well below a number of other cities that are so much less ostentatious about their claims to sinfulness that they are completely overlooked by the ministers.

We are naming no names. We do not care to have Chambers of Commerce thundering about our ears. It will probably be most disconcerting to New Yorkers to learn that the last complete official returns available disclose that one American city topped by 16,073 cases the New York record for the crime of breaking and entering.

N. Y. Outranked

The returns are on 1935, a year in which New York thought that it was making a nice showing for robberies. Yet the same American city that beat it on b and e, topped it on robberies by a margin of 8,995 cases.

Only on murders did New York manage to roll up a higher score in 1935 than any other city, but proportionately to population it was badly outranked even in this department.

The oldest inhabitant barely remembers the protected district of sin in the big town. Districts of this kind still flourish in quite a number of American cities.

We do not deem gambling a sin, but ministers are inclined to view it as a manifestation of the unrighteous. There was more open gambling in just one Southern resort city this winter than there has been in New York in 20 years.

If drinking be sinful, as some ministers suggest, New York, proportionately to population, is no more than even up with Philadelphia or Boston. It is a length behind Baltimore.

Unworthy of Fame

There is no way we can figure New York worthy of the sermons, and the public speeches, and the editorials, on the sinfulness of the Big Town. We note that of late the New York newspapers have taken to running stories of sinfulness of one kind and another in New Jersey and other neighboring states without date lines.

This is a palpable attempt to make it appear to the casual reader that the stories are local. Unless you read down a couple of paragraphs you are apt to put the paper aside with the impression that the sin took place in New York City.

We doubt that this ruse will fool the statisticians into raising New York's sin rating. However, it has definitely gone back.

So What? Asks Teacher Soon to Marry Pupil

MISS AGNES M. BEMIS
"In Papers Like Wally"

Miss Agnes M. Bemis, Everett high school teacher, was very much surprised today at the stir caused by announcement of her engagement to a former pupil.

Miss Bemis, who is 31, is to marry George McCullough, 24, of Washington street, Malden, a graduate of Everett high.

"My gracious! I didn't think my days would be so important," said Miss Bemis. "We're all over the papers like Wally Simpson."

She is a vivacious brunette and has been teaching at Everett High since she was 19 years old, having been one of the youngest teachers ever appointed in Massachusetts.

At the same age she was graduated with honors from Boston University.

"Our romance didn't actually start in George's school days," she explained. "He was never actually in one of my classes but, of course, he was a pupil and I was a teacher in the same high school, and I remembered him very well, because he was prominent in student activities."

"At the time he was in school, however, I was keeping company with somebody else. After his graduation we happened to meet and that is when our romance started."

"We haven't set the date yet. I want to teach for another year and then I'll resign to become a wife, just a housewife."

"Now I hope the paper will let us alone after this. My father is an editor and I know what people are interested in, but I never thought I'd be in the paper."

300 LOCAL BUS DRIVERS PLAN TO STRIKE

A strike of 300 drivers of the New England Transportation Company which operates buses between New York and Boston as well as lines in other New England states will be called in the near future, union officials announced today.

John F. O'Brien, vice-president of the bus operators' union, said no date had been set for the strike, but when the union was refused a 10 per cent wage increase.

In the two Maine cities of Auburn and Lewiston, Powers Hapgood, secretary of the New England council of the CIO, was in personal command of the strikers today, after having declared at a mass meeting last night that the CIO was prepared to spend huge sums to "make Maine a union state."

Only 300 of the 6000 bus workers in the two cities answered the strike call.

Despite the walkout of the 300 workers all of Lewiston's and Auburn's plants operated yesterday. It was a powerful strike demonstration, with only a thin line of pickets outside the plants. Many who failed to show up for work in the morning came on the job later in the day.

Four hundred strikers at the Lorraine Shoe Company in Malden were back on the job today.

Officials of the Fluor Shale Company, Alberton street, Jamaica Plain, said they would not reopen their plant where a strike was called yesterday, but will move to another city. They said they had already raised wages and would not recognize the International Shoe and Leather Workers Union as the sole bargaining agency.

STRIKE OF R. I. CLERKS HALTED

Woonsocket, R. I., March 26 (AP)—A general strike against Woonsocket retail stores, scheduled for 10 a. m., was averted at least temporarily, today as merchants and union leaders agreed to confer.

Approximately 700 clerks, reckoning wage increases and improved working conditions, remained on duty in 10 stores. Mayor Pratt, announced that owners and representatives of the Woonsocket Independent Textile Union would meet with him at 1:30 p. m., in effort to prevent a walkout on heavy Easter business.

Stores will be closed from noon until 2 p. m. in accordance with an annual Good Friday custom. Mayor Pratt expressed the hope an agreement might be reached before the scheduled reopening.

5-10 Girls' Chiefs In N. Y. Sit Parley

New York, March 26 (INS)—A conference continued here today between representatives of the Department Store Employees' Union and officials of the F. W. Woolworth Company in an effort to reach a new wage agreement affecting girl employees who have threatened sit-down strikes in five-and-ten-cent stores.

The union has already reached an agreement with the F. & W. Grand chain, providing for the termination of strikes which began in five stores on March 13. Employees receiving up to $20 a week are to be given a wage increase of 10 per cent, and others will receive a five per cent increase.

Italians' Retreat

Reds Drive Duce Troops in Spain

Madrid, March 26 (AP)—General Francisco Franco's southern insurgent army was battered into a continuing retreat today from Pozoblanco in what government reports described as a "second Guadalajara" for 10,000 Italian troops.

The government's militiamen, shouting leftist slogans and singing proletarian hymns to the drumming of machine guns and rifles and machine gun fire, slowly forced their enemy back toward Alarcos, about eight miles west of Pozoblanco, in Cordoba province.

The rout was publicly likened to what the Madrid-Valencia government has called the "Italaia defeat" in Guadalajara province, in which an army of 30,000 was turned back from a thrust at Madrid a week ago.

BIG DRIVE

Recapture of Alarcos, immediate objective of the two-day offensive, would eliminate danger to Pozoblanco and perhaps force Franco's warriors to fall back south to the Cordoba-Badajoz highway.

This would plant the fighting in a mountainous country abounding in perilous gorges—treacherous terrain for mass troop movements.

A highway running south from Alarcos intersects the Beltrán-Córdoba highway at Espinosa, Cordoba, one of the principal insurgent bases in Spain, lies about 20 miles due south of today's fighting.

Spontaneous fighting for weeks on the southern front, about 150 miles south of Madrid, has been increased by intensive bombing forays of insurgent aircraft, but the fiercest fighting was the first full force offensive by the government since it lost the airport, Málaga.

PLANE, TANKS ACTIVE

In the gray dawn of the government's "zero hour" when the first wave thrust was started, riflemen, machine gunners and tanks, and armored cars charged across a no-man's-land dotted with rolling hills of men who had fallen days ago.

Insurgents on both sides had prevented recovery of the area during the long period of waiting.

Government planes and tanks and armored cars pointed the way, strafing both insurgent front and rear positions. Both bombs and aerial machine gun fire were reported.

BRITAIN TO IGNORE Spain Arms Warning

London, March 26 (AP)—Official British statement today that refusal of the Spanish government at Valencia to let British ships pass with its shipping would not affect the four-power naval neutrality pact because the pact does not have jurisdiction over government or insurgent shipping.

Publication of the text of the Italian note declaring the Spanish government will "provide itself with arms and ammunition as ever and however it can" attracted little interest in official circles.

Insurgents said today that the navy patrol does not intend to be impeded by the slightest.

Soviet Paper Terms Duce 'False Caesar'

Moscow, March 26 (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia, calling Premier Mussolini of Italy a "False Caesar," declared today Italian refusal to discuss withdrawal of troops from Spain showed clearly that Duce planned to send new and fiercer armies into the civil conflict.

The paper, which is government owned, said the statements of Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, to that effect was a direct challenge to all powers represented on the London committee and created a "fearful menace to peace."

Internal Fighting Among Duce Troops Reported

Valencia, Spain, March 26 (AP)—Internal fighting among 20,000 Italian volunteers on the Guadalajara front, official Spanish government sources said today, has caused their removal from the ranks of General Francisco Franco's insurgents.

Disorder coming across the battle lines confirmed government reports that the Italian troops had been withdrawn from the front lines in the Guadalajara sector.

Md. CCC Boys Aid As Storm Arrives

Oakland, Md., March 26 (AP)—The main job of the boys at the nearby CCC camp is digging ditches and cutting down trees, but they are not averse to giving Old Man Frost a lift in an emergency.

So, when a neighbor struggled in and asked aid they got busy. After a battle with snow drifts they opened the road to the man's home.

Then the man placed his wife in his auto, hurried her to Waterport, about 20 minutes after they got there, she gave birth to a daughter.

Would Classify Trailers as Houses

Albany, N. Y., March 26 (AP)—Homes trailers would be classified as buildings instead of vehicles, so trailer burglars can be prosecuted, in a bill Assemblyman W. Alan Newell, St. Lawrence county Republican has introduced in the legislature.

OATH BATTLE SHIFTS BACK HOUSE

With the battle ground shifted back to the House, the faculty conflict over repeal of the teachers oath law will be resumed next Monday or Tuesday.

The immediate point of issue is an amendment to the repeal bill which the Senate adopted on motion of Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham by a standing vote of 16 to 14. Under this amendment, any professor, instructor or teacher who has already sworn to uphold the Constitution of the United States and Massachusetts under the main law, can at his or her own request be absolved or relieved of that oath by voluntarily giving before the officer or person who administered the oath, or the officer's or person's successor.

But any one so doing must forthwith file a certificate of the relief with the department of education and a duplicate to the college or school at which he or she is serving.

RECORD MUST BE KEPT
That record is required to be kept in the files.
Senator Nicholson is an ardent supporter of the oath law and his motion has placed the repeals in an embarrassing position, and it is contended, imperils the final passage of the measure.

Nicholson contends that if now professors and teachers are not to be required to take an oath, it is only reasonable to allow those who have taken it to be relieved of its restrictions and if they so elect.

NOTE IS TO BE
After the Nicholson amendment was adopted, the Senate voted on roll call to pass the bill to be engrossed. The vote was 18 to 16, with six senators paired.

Senator Joseph A. Langone, Jr., of Boston, held to his former position and voted with the repeals. In a scathing arraignment of the repeat advocates among the professors and teachers, Senator Nicholson said:
"This amendment would take a blot from the name of the teacher and give the teacher who has taken the oath the opportunity to get into the class with the other members of the teachers' profession who will not be required to swear allegiance."

NOTE IN THE PRESS
He predicted that not one teacher in 100 will take advantage of the amendment to be relieved of their sworn allegiance. He held that anything detrimental to the country is not being taught in the grade schools but in the "schools of higher education."

Nicholson hailed the oath requirement and declared that it has done much toward making those who look it conscious of the constitution under which the rights of all are guaranteed.

Senator Edward C. Carroll of South Boston supported Nicholson and contended that practically the same oath is taken by all members of fraternal societies.

An attempt to get another amendment adopted to place the question on the ballot in 1938 was ruled out of order by President Samuel H. Wright of Needham. A point of order was raised by Senator John D. Mackay of Quincy, a repealer. The order was offered by Senator Charles G. Miles of Brockton, oath law supporter.

CASEY AGAINST REPEAL
Senator Thomas Burke of Boston said that out of the thousands of teachers who have taken the oath, two have asked him to vote repeal while hundreds have spoken in favor of the oath.

"We have professors in our colleges here who have been teaching Communism and by the Living God, as long as I live I will vote to make them take the oath," Senator Burke declared.

Another speaker against repeal was Senator P. Eugene Casey of Milford. Casey argued that the teachers' oath bill has nothing to do with labor and he served notice that if they insist upon putting him "on the spot," he was through with labor.

Arms Workers Threaten Strike
Glasgow, March 26 (AP)—Two thousand armament workers, engaged on the British government's $7,500,000 defense program, threatened today to strike unless they received a two cents an hour wage increase.

COMPROMISES ON COURT PLAN DISCUSSED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, March 26.—A series of moves toward a compromise on President Roosevelt's plan to inject "new blood" into the Supreme Court were under way today as the Senate Judiciary committee took an Easter recess in its public hearings on the issue.

One move was made by Senator Burke (D., of Nebraska), who drafted a proposed constitutional amendment, limiting the court to nine members but calling for compulsory retirement of justices at the age of 75.

The adoption would force the retirement of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and three of his associate justices and give the President the power to appoint four new justices.

TWO HATCH PROPOSALS
Another move by Senator Hatch (D.), of New Mexico, was to draft two amendments to the President's own bill in hopes of making it acceptable to both factions. Hatch has been non-committal thus far.

One of Hatch's proposed amendments would limit the President's proposal to name one new justice for each justice over 70 who fails to retire, to the appointment of but one new justice during any calendar year. This would limit the President to naming four new justices during the present term if none of the aged justices retired.

The second Hatch amendment would adopt the suggestion in Mr. Roosevelt's original message to Congress for flexibility in the size of the Supreme Court. This latter was changed to a maximum permanent membership of 15 in the bill introduced in the President's behalf.

The Hatch amendment would provide that the President name a new justice for each justice over 70 who fails to retire, but thereafter could not name another new justice when the aged justice retired or died. Under the President's bill, he could name a new justice in each instance.

WANTS NO COMPROMISE
Senator Arthur (D.) of Arizona, committee chairman, and head of the administration forces, declared: "We want a clean-cut victory or a clean-cut defeat on the President's plan. There can be no compromise."

Opposition leaders here from distant cities to appear on the stand today and tomorrow, only to have the hearings called off by administration senators. These opposition witnesses, who include college professors, noted churchmen and nationally known liberals will be heard next week.

The opposition closed its case before the recess with a churchman, a law dean and farm leader assailing the presidential plan. All three, Dr. Gould Wickey, a Lutheran educator, Dean Young B. Smith, of Columbia law, and Fred Breckman, National Grange representative, charged the plan would lead to the "packing of the court" and might possibly "endanger religious liberties" in the future.

Dean Smith proved so interesting a witness, he was highly complimented by proponents of the President's plan.

'101 Descendants'

Washington, March 26 (U.S.)—Mourned by 101 descendants, Mrs. Harriet Elizabeth Denison, 83, of Hilledale, Md., will be buried here today. She is survived by eight of her sixteen children and by 30 grandchildren, 55 great-grandchildren and 6 great-great-grandchildren, one of the valuable prizes.

Egg Hunting Sleuths and Their Hunting Grounds

No wonder they are happy. The picture shows a very small part of the huge throng of X-9 members at a club outing last summer. Most of these same laughing youths will be scurrying around The Playstead tomorrow searching for the Gold Egg, the Silver Egg and the 1000 unpaired eggs.

Map shows the Playstead at Franklin Park where, during the dark mysterious hours between midnight and dawn tonight, a crew of operatives, directed by The Chief, X-9 himself, will conceal 1002 Easter Eggs for which 25,000 members of the X-9 Club will search tomorrow.

SCOTT GRANTED NEW TRIAL IN ATTACK

Over the protest of Assistant District Attorney John F. McAuliffe in Suffolk court today, Judge Joseph A. Sheehan granted a new trial to William H. Scott, 22, of Cambridge, sentenced to State Prison last Monday on a girl's neck charge.

Before imposing a sentence of five to seven years last Monday, Judge Sheehan had declared there was a reasonable doubt as to Scott's guilt, but the jury verdict of guilty had left no alternative but to pass sentence.

The judge, at that time, also denied a motion by Scott's counsel, William H. Lewis, Jr., who claimed the verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

As a result, Scott, who has a wife and two children in Philadelphia, began writing his sentence last Monday for the alleged attack upon Patricia Blakely, 25, in her apartment in Mt. Vernon street, Beacon Hill, last December 8.

Scott, handcuffed to a state prison guard, was brought back to court today and the handcuffs removed as a bench conference opened. Attorney Lewis made a parallel motion for a new trial.

Assistant District Attorney McAuliffe said to the judge:

"I am going to oppose this motion in the absence of any additional evidence not shown when this motion was denied before."

Judge Sheehan merely looked at McAuliffe, but said nothing. Instead, the judge began dictating to the court stenographer, saying:

"In order to avoid, so far as may be possible, a miscarriage of justice upon a motion of the defendant for a new trial I hereby allow the defense motion for a new trial and I hereby set aside the verdict of the jury on the ground it was against the weight of the evidence. I now allow the defendant's motion for a new trial."

McAuliffe started to protest, but Judge Sheehan said to him: "You have declared yourself as opposed to this motion. The court does not desire to hear from you which I oppose this motion."

"No, sir," replied Judge Sheehan. "Thank you," said McAuliffe. Ball of $200 was then set for Scott and was furnished.

$228,000 SLASHED OFF STATE BUDGET

Massachusetts' 1937 budget was cut to $71,234,000 today, $228,000 less than Governor Hurley's recommendations following action by the legislative committee on ways and means.

Outline of provisions in the budget will be made to the House a week from Monday and voting on the items will begin the next day.

The $228,000 reduction was brought about by the lessening of allowances for some departments. Actual expenditures of $70,061,000 is assured, a reserve fund of $1,173,000 has been set up to allow for future increases.

Twenty-five men put in the state income division during Governor Curley's administration face loss of their jobs through the recommended reduction of $150,000 for that department. Provision has been made to pay the salaries of only 71 men.

An estimate of $2,110,000 for the Boston State Hospital, object of a recent probe, received a staggering cut, only $85,000 increase being allowed for sanitation, medical care and fire protection at the institution.

It was explained this increase would only serve as a stopgap until the Governor's special commission on mental diseases hospitals reports its findings.

Leutenant-Colonel Paul G. Kirk's request for $33,000 extra for addition of 20 new state troopers and a flying crime laboratory to the state department of public safety was denied, his budget being reduced this amount.

the Playstead just before the search starts and some hint as to where the eggs are hidden will be given.

Argue on Hospital As Injured Man Waits in Agony

Crushed between two steel girders, John Whalen, 45, married, of Worcester street, Watertown, was seriously injured today while at work on the construction site of an insurance building at Stuart and Berkeley streets, Back Bay. Then came a five-minute argument over the hospital to which he should be removed.

Richard Whalen, a brother and employed on the same construction as a foreman, rushed to the injured man's side and told police to take him to Massachusetts General Hospital.

As the man, writhing in agony, was placed in the police ambulance, an employee of the insurance company, putting up the new building, rushed up and told officers to take Whalen to Brooke Hospital in Brookline.

He stated, according to police, that it was there that his company sent their patients.

After the ambulance was held up for five minutes, workers pulled the insurance company employee away and Whalen was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital. His name was placed on the danger list after he was found to be suffering from internal injuries and a possible fractured right leg.

SOLDIERS' AID PROBE ORDERED

Worcester, March 26.—Investigation into the soldiers' relief bureau was ordered by Mayor John S. Sullivan here today following charges that vouchers had been falsified.

Investigators believe that several persons are involved in a conspiracy which was brought to the attention of the mayor by John H. Mahoney, director of the Worcester Taxpayers' Association.

As police started the probe, it was announced that Assistant Commissioner James J. Rice, an employee of the bureau since 1932, had been suspended.

It is alleged that those involved cashed vouchers in the names of persons who had already been paid and whose accounts had been closed.

According to investigators, many of the vouchers were cashed in the city treasurer's office by Harold M. Hall, chief teller, who is now serving three to five years in prison in connection with a shortage of funds.

G. S. Patton Dies

Hamilton, Bermuda, March 26.—George S. Patton, former Princeton University professor and a son of the late Dr. Francis L. Patton, one-time president of Princeton, is dead.

U. S. MAY TAKE 'MR. X' CASE

Possibility of federal intervention in prosecution of John Neville, alias John Bruce Heath, was seen today, as out of state ramifications of Neville's alleged "get-rich-quick" scheme were uncovered by Attorney General Paul A. Davis.

Davis' investigators traced to New York $10,000 worth of bonds, said to have been entrusted to Neville by one-chapman, investor here.

At the same time, Lieutenant Frank Hale of the state police began a check-up of 15 of Neville's alleged victims, living outside Boston.

Several of these were reported to be residents of Rhode Island. This opened the possibility of transfer of the case to federal jurisdiction.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

The lightning-quick camera eye caught Herb Lewis (above, left), spark-plug of the Detroit Red Wings, in this slashing set-to before the goal. Next split-second he scored! In the locker room after the game (right), between bites of a big hamburger, Herb said: "You bet I enjoy eating. And I'll give Camels credit for helping me enjoy my food. Smoking Camels with my meals and afterward eases tension, builds up a sense of well-being. I'll second the motion—for digestion's sake—smoke Camels."

I enjoy Camels steadily—right through the training season. Experience shows that Camel smokers enjoy smoking to the full. It's to Camels they turn for an invigorating "lift" in energy. At mealtimes, it's Camels again "for digestion's sake." Thanks to Camels' gentle aid, the flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—speeds up. A sense of well-being follows. So make it Camels—the live-long day. And Camels don't get on your nerves or irritate sensitive throats.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXTENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic...than any other popular brand (Signed) R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY Winston-Salem, N. C.

CAPT. S. THERIAULT, skipper of a Gloucester fishing schooner, goes for days at a stretch without a bite of hot, well-cooked food, while his ship claws through a hurricane. "Hard tack or a big steak, say, 'me for Camels when food comes around. When I smoke Camels it's smooth sailing so far as my digestion is concerned."

THE DARING glider enthusiast and endurance record-holder, Dorothy Hollerman, says: "Guiding a sailplane is a thrilling sport, though nerve-shattering and exhausting at times. Tired and wrought-up as I may feel afterwards, a few Camels keep my digestion running smoothly."

"OPERATING THIS 30-TON crane is no job for a man unless his nerves and digestion are O. K.," Peter Cullen says. "That's why, 'For digestion's sake—smoke Camels' struck home with me. I like to settle back after a massive meal and enjoy my Camels. That's lively! Working, resting, or playing, I smoke Camels all the time."

STEER-WRANGLING and bronc-busting are all part of compuncter Hardy Murphy's job. He hails from Oklahoma. "Camels are screw-up with me." Hardy says. "I smoke 'em from sun-up to sun-down. As a cowhand I take what chuck I get and count on Camels to help ease my digestion."

Former Newton Teacher Among Plane Victims

On her way to Chicago to meet her parents and other members of her family for a reunion, Miss Peckham Trask, 37, former Newton teacher, was among the victims killed in the New York City plane crash near Pittsburgh.

Scenes of her friends' acquaintances and classmates at Pittsburgh State Teachers' College were shocked today at news of her death.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Trask of Sterling, Mass.

She had been staying in California all winter. They recently arrived in Chicago. She is a sister of Robert Trask, Lexington, Mass.

For the past 10 years she was a teacher at the William Penn Charter school, Germantown, Pa. She was on vacation and had planned to spend it in Chicago with her family.

Miss Trask was born in Haverhill, Mass. Her parents moved to Sterling. She was graduated from grammar school, attended Lexington high school and then entered Pittsburgh Teachers' College.

She has a sister, Hazel Trask, living in Chicago.

"Thank God for the advice and instruction of that man who taught it to me."

OIL AID RESCUE

The storm struck the Bjerkli last Sunday, on Monday the hatch was stove in and several leaks developed and by Monday night it was apparent the vessel was sinking, the captain said.

"All the men were on deck, battling the sea for two days and two nights before we were taken off," he continued. "Meanwhile I lapped out the SOS, and one by one the ships responded, but the Chelan reached us first."

The sea was high and I had my men pour a barrel of oil on the water as each lifeboat was launched. This prevented the wave from breaking.

Seven men were in the first boat and the other nine of us in the second. We scrambled on to the cutter up the cargo nets with the hung over the side."

The last man reached the deck of the Chelan at 4 p. m. Tuesday. He was taken down below. After the Bjerkli had vanished forever.

HONOR TO DEAD SHIP

Writing the epitaph of the freighter in the language of a man who has lived ships, Commander Lyndon Spencer of the Chelan is curled in passing this: "At 10:30 p. m., 23d March, the Bjerkli disappeared from sight beneath the water, ending 28 years of useful service."

The cutter dashed 20 miles to make the rescue in response to the radio calls and out by the skipper of the stricken ship. Answering were the Hawkeye, the Pequot, the Albatross, the

CHAPTER 18

Paula demurred. "It's late and so—" "Just a handful of moments," he pleaded whimsically. Then unusually earnest, "Please, carissime. There's something I must tell you tonight, and if being something of a confession, I prefer the dark."

She settled back in her corner. He smiled at her. "It's harder to begin—Paula, I'd give a year of my life if I saved you—"

"Silly! Don't waste another thought. No one thinks you a coward."

He drew a quick breath and said eagerly, "I feel wholly that I couldn't explain before the others. I was afraid, afraid—for you. The most awful experience of my life—to stand before you and see David gaze at you from that light of his eyes. You heard of a man living over his entire life in the moment of devotion. I did just that. Now myself as I was, but more than that, I knew you were my whole world, and if I lost you—"

"Carissime, please. I must tell you. I—"

"I'm so glad you did," he said, smiling. "I never faced myself, never really took stock of myself until I saw your dress in the light and realized—"

Vie With Red Tulips

HANDSOME is as handsome does . . . that's why you can wear a knit suit that looks hand made, costs a lot less than the hand-toil article, and gives you just as much happiness. Here is one—Fashion Congress winner, modeled by Miss Janet McNell, Brookline—whose lines are fresh, new, and whose color would put even the Public Garden's choicest red tulips in the background.

Cord endings have been turned over on tailored suits and coats . . . so why shouldn't a knit take advantage of this new trend? It does—outlining the pathway curve and the high collarless neckline. And since one good knit deserves another, the high cap matches the two-piece suit. Notice the elegant slenderizing propensities of the rib-stitch.

For shopping information on this knit which looks hand made, phone Annie Brink, Fashion Editor, L1Berry 4060, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Easter time is fast time in these modern days as truly as it was in the ancient pre-Christian era when huge community festivals celebrated the birthday of the Goddess Ecce of Spring. For this day we plan a special Easter breakfast special Easter dinner, and frequently entertain with tea or buffet using the Easter motif for food and decoration.

Ham and eggs are traditional Easter foods just like rabbits. Easter eggs and dainty baskets are traditional symbols of the season. Eggs (not one, but several) for breakfast follow the Easter Hunt, and a gorgeous ham for dinner forms the foundation on which the Easter day menu is built. Let your Easter dinner start with a truly festive ham dressed in most glittering party dress of honey glaze and sparkling orange peel, nuts and garnished with fruit, deliciously glazed in honey.

"Now Figure, Madame!"

YOUR POSTURE HAS EVERYTHING
By IDA JEAN KAIN
By IDA JEAN KAIN

AGE has nothing to do with posture . . . but posture has everything to do with the age you look. No all appearance, posture can add or subtract years from the date on your birth certificate.

Although we are becoming increasingly posture-minded, Caroline Brown, authority on posture and physical sculpture, finds the average figures in need of alignment to correct hollow chest, prominent shoulder blades, a protruding abdomen—or even knock-knees.

Any one of these defects will make you look older than you actually are. Standing against the wall to align your figure in correct posture, is fine, long as you stand there. The alignment, according to Brown, should be from the inside. Try to imagine a line running from the center of your head down through your body and intersecting with another line running horizontally through the pelvis. This point of intersection is the fulcrum of your figure—on which you concentrate in exercises.

Since flexibility is the thing to work for in posture, your spine and back muscles must be greased to those in sitting position. Lie flat on your back on the floor, arms extended straight out from the shoulders at the sides, feet flat on the floor. Try to touch the small of body in perfect alignment with means the lack of straightness and hunching. Hold the arms straight out at the sides. Without lowering the heels to the floor, slowly go into a half knee bend, straighten up.

The bidding:
8th	West	North	East
10	10	10	10
20	20	20	20
30	30	30	30
40	40	40	40
50	50	50	50
60	60	60	60
70	70	70	70
80	80	80	80
90	90	90	90
100	100	100	100

South reemphasized West's trump bidding as climactic gesture to "psych" him out of a game, and the greatly delayed diamond bid was more or less what South expected.

West opened the diamond King, and declarer ruffed. Then, seeing that it would be imperative to establish the long spade suit, laid down the Ace and a low spade. West's King was ruffed away, and declarer now returned to his own hand with the Jack of hearts.

Naturally he was not pleased when West failed to follow, but he did not allow this to throw him off stride. Another low spade was ruffed, and West's Queen, and then declarer deliberately ruffed himself down further by leading a diamond and trumping it with the Jack of hearts.

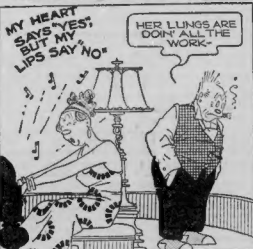

At this point East was two cards lower in the trump suit than West was the declarer, but this did not worry South greatly, for every card was accounted for, and absolutely sure that West would not have "stretched his neck" with a five diamond bid on less than a seven-card suit and, in that case, East, on taking control with trumps, would be unable to put his partner on lead.

After cashing the Ace and King of hearts, declarer started with the Jack of diamonds, East followed to the Jack, and ruffed the next round. But then he could win only his own remaining trump—the forced club lead from West's hand—by cashing the tenace of declarer and dummy's for the fulfilling tricks of the contract.
